Wendy Moore was one of Australia's leading IT Project Managers. Along the way she created an impressive property portfolio and realised she was more passionate about property than project management.

Three years ago Wendy left her high powered highly paid position to become a full time investor. She was incredibly successful and wanted to show other women how to become financially independent through property investing.

Wendy established Affluencia which conducts property investing education programs and networking opportunities for women. Her Get Started in Property mentoring program show members step-by-step what is required to succeed as a property investor.

After being featured before 1.4 million viewers on TV's Hot Property, Wendy has become one of Australia's leading property mentors – especially for women and speaks throughout Australia.

Then emerged a love for running her business online. As her own knowledge grew, she discovered how little other women knew about creating online business success. Wendy then established Savvy Web Women to show small business women everywhere how to take their client facing business online and leverage the power of the internet.
